WITH THE FARMERS

Farm Bureau Official Information

BETTER FEELING IN FARMING INDUSTRY

Definite Improvement Seen by Dean Russell, U. W. College Head.

Madison—A definite improvement in the agricultural situation and a change in the general feeling toward the farm has taken place during the past three months, according to Dean Russell, dean of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, here. "Already one can see results of the change reflected in the attitude of many who are connected with the farming industry," Dean Russell said. "The better feeling now prevails in the farming business than has been apparent at any time since 1920, when and because of the depression, there was a general feeling of gloom and despair."

"With the dawn of a better day breaking after four long years in the valley of shadows, it is an excellent feeling toward the farm and ourselves and to establish a new and deeper faith in the farming industry."

"Agriculture will always remain the fundamental of all our industries. Its support, therefore, over a long period of time, must come to those who stay in the farm. When equality of treatment is established, the man who starts with deflation accomplished in an infinitely better situation than the man who bought at the crest of inflation."

"It looks as if farming has struck bottom, taken its penalty of deflation and is now beginning to rise. It is later than spring, and has started on the upgrade. A wheel to revolve must sometimes be in the mud. So in agriculture, the efficient man in agriculture is elsewhere in agriculture. These who will succeed at farming in the future must do so through a thorough knowledge of better methods and the intelligent use of more efficient means of production as well as distribution."

WHEN IS HAM NOT HAM? WHEN IT'S A LEGAL TECHNICALITY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison—Does "ham" refer only to the hind legs of a pig or is it the result of a curing process? When Dairy and Food Commissioner J. G. Emery wanted to know whether a certain retailer could be prosecuted for advertising picnic hams as hams, Assistant Attorney General Allen C. Bels delinately passed the buck back to Emery.

The question of whether or not "smoked" shoulders, or picnic hams, are de facto hams is a question of fact and not a question of law, Bels said. Emery in an opinion handed down today.

Not Question of Justice.

"Whether 'shoulders' are 'ham' is not the point to be determined by judicial precedents or legal reasoning," Bels said.

"We lawyers can doubtless obtain substantial agreement upon the point that 'ham' is a word, and limitations restrict it from going into further refinement. Some persons suggest that 'ham' means the hind legs only, while others maintain that the term 'ham' refers to a process—namely, a curing process, and that the so-called shoulders or front legs, if cured in this manner, may become 'ham' if properly treated."

"This, however, is a delicate issue of fact which should be adjudicated, in the first instance, by a tribunal such as yours."

What It's All About.

If smoked shoulders are hams, then the retailer is not liable to prosecution, Bels said. If they are not hams, and the party has caused the false advertisement to be published for the purpose of defrauding, then a very clear criminal offense exists under the fraudulent advertising statute.

Davis Has Best Chance to Win in Oklahoma

David Lawrence

Copyright 1924, by the Janesville Gazette—Special Correspondence to the Janesville Gazette.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—John W. Davis is reasonably certain of Oklahoma's electoral vote. When the democratic voters are apathetic this state sometimes turns upside down. There's no danger in 1924 as the light for and against former Gov. J. W. Walton, democratic nominee for the United States senate, is making Oklahoma seem a little more sane.

When Robert L. Owen, democrat and the present incumbent from Oklahoma, seeks to call on the democrats of the state to support Walton and cast their votes for his opponent W. H. Howe, republican, some idea of the intensity of the battle may be conveyed to the outside world.

Walton won in the democratic primaries as a minority candidate. He has raised the anti-Klan issue. Newspapers like the Daily Oklahoman, which are and have been anti-Klan, decline to ally that issue to influence their voting about Walton's candidacy. To one finds here the spectacle of most of the democratic newspapers supporting John W. Davis and the democratic state ticket, but holding the democratic nominee on the senate ticket.

Walton's impeachment and his record in office are given by Senator Owen as reasons for refusing to support the man nominated to succeed him. Naturally a row inside the democratic party has its dangers. Progress is being made on many old-time democratic votes for the whole ticket including Walton, the argument being made that defections in one place might lead to others and the ticket party with it a certain peril to the democratic nominees for supreme court judges. Six are to be elected, which makes up a majority of the court, and the thought is being distributed among democrats that if the republicans win the court they will knock out the Jim Crow laws, a subject on which Oklahoma is as tender as South Carolina or any other state of the solid south.

La Follette's Big Vote

Senator La Follette will get a big vote, perhaps 100,000. This would be little less than a fifth of the total vote expected to be cast. But there always has been a farmer-labor vote here and a radical movement. It has been somewhat obscure and hasn't always gone to the polls because of the known futility of that errand. With La Follette conceded to be a factor in the presidential contest, at least in being able possibly to deadlock the contest, the radicals are coming out to vote. Then there is the protest vote against both parties. It always amounts to something. Using agricultural prices tend to some extent to ease discontent but it hasn't been enough long enough to smother all of the protesting farmers.

Davis Well Liked

John W. Davis is well liked in Oklahoma. It is interesting to find a state here that, for here, the newspapers have given space to his speeches and statements, and the strength of Davis is not unlike that which has been carefully cultivated for President Coolidge in states where the republican press is all-controlling. Gov. Brown has been making a favorable impression with his speeches.

Walton's Impassioned

Walton's impassioned and his record in office are given by Senator Owen as reasons for refusing to support the man nominated to succeed him. Naturally a row inside the democratic party has its dangers. Progress is being made on many old-time democratic votes for the whole ticket including Walton, the argument being made that defections in one place might lead to others and the ticket party with it a certain peril to the democratic nominees for supreme court judges. Six are to be elected, which makes up a majority of the court, and the thought is being distributed among democrats that if the republicans win the court they will knock out the Jim Crow laws, a subject on which Oklahoma is as tender as South Carolina or any other state of the solid south.

La Follette's Big Vote

Senator La Follette will get a big vote, perhaps 100,000. This would be little less than a fifth of the total vote expected to be cast. But there always has been a farmer-labor vote here and a radical movement. It has been somewhat obscure and hasn't always gone to the polls because of the known futility of that errand. With La Follette conceded to be a factor in the presidential contest, at least in being able possibly to deadlock the contest, the radicals are coming out to vote. Then there is the protest vote against both parties. It always amounts to something. Using agricultural prices tend to some extent to ease discontent but it hasn't been enough long enough to smother all of the protesting farmers.

Davis Well Liked

John W. Davis is well liked in Oklahoma. It is interesting to find a state here that, for here, the newspapers have given space to his speeches and statements, and the strength of Davis is not unlike that which has been carefully cultivated for President Coolidge in states where the republican press is all-controlling. Gov. Brown has been making a favorable impression with his speeches.

Walton's Impassioned

Walton's impassioned and his record in office are given by Senator Owen as reasons for refusing to support the man nominated to succeed him. ## Sugar Plant Adds 3 New Conveyors for Loading Beets

for Loading Beets

With the Rock County Sugar company scheduled to open Tuesday morning for an 80-day season, large numbers of beets are being shipped in and a force of 800 workers is employed in the fields harvesting.

S. C. Sorenson, plant agriculturalist, reports that three new conveyors have been added this year for loading purposes, one being located at Stewart, Ill., another at Rochelle, Ill., and the third at Janesville. There is also a conveyor at Whitewater and five large beet dumps located at other Wisconsin points.

For plant estimate purposes, the beet crop is usually figured at an average of 10 tons to the acre, but this year it is expected there will be considerable over-run, some land yielding as high as 25 tons to the acre.

J. G. Harrie is manager and P. H. Marks, superintendent.

VALENTINO PICTURE AT JEFFRIS IS HIS FIRST IN 2 YEARS

Rudolph Valentino makes his return to the screen triumphantly in the motion picture version of "Monarch of the Night," the Booth Washington story, which is described as the most lavish screen play ever attempted by a producing company. This will be the feature attraction at the Jeffris Theatre Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

During the showing of this picture in Milwaukee and Chicago many thousands of the admirers of Valentino jammed the streets endeavoring to gain admission to the theater that they might pay tribute to the greatest lover of the silver sheet upper his appearance before the motion picture public in two years.

Valentino has three big love scenes in this picture and they are with Babe Daniels and one is with Doris Kenyon. All three are what studio officials term "high-powered." Babe Daniels and Lois Wilson appear together for the first time on the screen in featured roles in this production.

Scribner Commends Amateur Spirit

The amateur spirit in "The Center of the Universe," according to the sermon of the Rev. E. J. Scribner of the local Congregational church, speaking at the leaders' conference under the auspices of the county Y. M. C. A. at Clinton Sunday afternoon.

That which makes things worth while is the spirit which induces men to do things without thought of what they may get out of it in a financial way, and it is this that the "Y" is fostering in its group work, the Rev. Mr. Scribner said.

Speaking of athletics, he stated that it was not because a few dollars made a difference between professional and amateur sports, but that the difference was in the reason for entering the game, whether for the money involved or for the satisfaction and honor of the sport.

Forty-five men and boys were present, representing Shoppe, Emerald Grove, Murray group, Bergen, in addition to Clinton, Jay Green, president of the county association, presided. The next southeastern meeting will be at Emerald Grove on Nov. 2.

Pulling Together

THE outward and visible manifestations of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) organization consists of certain refineries, buildings, storage depots, service stations, tank wagons and quantities of crude petroleum and its products.

These tangible things any oil company may copy. The refineries of this Company, efficient as they now are, nevertheless may be copied by others. Its system of distribution may be copied. The design of its service stations, with their infinitely practical arrangements for service, may be copied. For all these things are but the work of hands.

But back of all these material possessions is something else—something fundamental, intangible—the will and the energy to create; the ideal which inspires and animates intrinsic service. This determination, this will and enthusiasm of heart cannot be copied. It is the unique possession which gives character to the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

This character is expressed in ideals of management. A prominent industrial engineer well says: "It is the part of management to manage. It is the part of science to overcome difficulties. Anybody can accept things as they are."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has never been content to "accept things as they are." It will never be satisfied until petroleum is made to yield the greatest possible number of products which shall render a useful service to society.

This Company believes that an industrial organization exists and is permanent only because it renders an essential service.

It is the enthusiastic, wholehearted determination to serve, on the part of the 27,160 employees, which has made this Company a constructive force.

It is the harmonious pulling together of this industrial army that has enabled the Company to build a great business upon a foundation of fundamental service.

This spirit, which is imbued in the heart of every Standard Oil employee, is the key to the success of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). You will find it manifest at every point. It is inherent. It is inimitable.

CATHOLIC RURAL SESSION OCT. 20

National Meet in Milwaukee Will Be Addressed by Experts.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Milwaukee—Catholics from every part of the United States will assemble here Oct. 20-23 to take part in the annual meeting of the Catholic Rural Life conference, when every phase of rural life in connection with the faith will be discussed.

The United States Department of Agriculture will be represented by Dr. C. J. Ralph of the bureau of agricultural economics and by George E. Farrell of the extension service. Work of religious communities will be explained by Father Sigstien, Gary, Ind.; Sister Marie Ellerker, Duluth, and the Rev. George Daley of Canada.

The Catholic hierarchy will be represented by the Most Reverend Sebastian Messmer, archbishop of Milwaukee, who will deliver the address of welcome, and by Bishops P. J. Muldoon of Rockford, Ill., and T. W. Drumm, Des Moines, a large number of rural priests and lay persons also will address the conference. Agricultural colleges of Iowa, Wisconsin, and Massachusetts are to be represented.

The religious significance of the conference is explained by the Rev. Edwin V. O'Hara, director of the Catholic Rural Life bureau, Eugene, Ore., in the following statement:

"More and more the rural problem occupies the center of the stage in the discussion of American politics. The world-wide agrarian revolution since the Great war completed by the 'Green Revolution' is undoubtedly having its counterpart in our country. Unfortunately here for the most part the movement is crudely economic, ethical, and religious. It is radically a question of provision for family life. American farms are not so important for the production of foodstuffs as they are for the raising of children. The farm is the native habitat of the family, and consequently the prolific source of population increase. The rural problem, then, is of

Chevrolet Breaks World's Record

100 Hour Non-Stop Run Establishes New Economy and Endurance Record

Economy and Endurance Results

100 Hour Non-Stop Run.

90½ Gallons Gasoline Consumed.

4½ Quarts of Oil Added.

No Water Added During Entire Run.

31 4-10 Miles Average to the Gallon of Gasoline

633 Miles Average to the Quart of Oil

This national 100-hour non-stop Chevrolet endurance and economy test has created a splendid interest and enthusiasm throughout the entire country. The local test held by the R. W. Motor Sales in this city, has been particularly interesting in view of the fact that the results in the Janesville run established a new world's record.

The figures given herewith were accurately kept by a number of uninterested observers who are not employed by this organization and these observers were changed at the end of each eight hours.

We want the public to know that these observers were in charge of the car throughout the entire run and kept accurate account of all gas, oil and water consumed, as well as the mileage figures, and to see that the motor ran continuously.

This test has proven beyond a doubt the splendid endurance and economy of operating a Chevrolet car. A Chevrolet gives dependability in every mile. J. F. Miller and Vic Jersild were the drivers throughout the entire run.

With officials claiming a new world record, the Chevrolet stock car of the R. W. Motor Sales company completed its 100-hour endurance run at noon Saturday, having covered 2,849 miles on 90½ gallons of gasoline, 4½ quarts of oil and no added water. The figures were kept by observers, and announced by T. J. Roach, manager of the R. W.

It was stated that the old 100-hour endurance record was 2,346 miles, or 503 miles less than the one completed Saturday. The average consumption of gasoline was a gallon to every 31.4 miles, and of oil it was 22.2 miles to the quart, according to Mr. Roach.

The car was a Janesville made machine and had been run 501 miles prior to the test. Observers who checked the performance of the car that was stopped only for fuel and lubricating oil and whose motor ran continuously were H. B. Gates, R. McCarthy, H. C. Stoll, D. Wixom, E. Lein, L. H. Johnson, C. B. Riley, H. C. Davis and R. Schofield. There were two drivers, operating in eight hour shifts: J. F. Miller and Victor Jersild. The car was run at an average of 28.49 miles an hour, it was stated.

A crowd of several hundred blocked Milwaukee street in front of the R. W. show rooms when the machine "came home" with its motor purring smoothly and the body covered with dust. The high school band was on hand and a trio consisting of Theodore Lavey, George Strumpe and William Schroeder serenaded the machine with a parody, while F. E. Vurrell, the "mechanical doll" from Boston, bowed in the window.
